INTRODUCTION

This finding aid focuses on the genealogical papers of Jeanne Ridgway Bigger, a professional genealogist, of Tullahoma, Tennessee. Spanning the years 1967-1989, the papers contain genealogical research on a number of families as well as other genealogical materials such as tax lists, wills, and marriage records. Also found within the collection are papers from Mrs. Bigger's term on the Tennessee Historical Records Advisory Board in 1987, as well as her business and personal correspondence. Personal papers of Mrs. Bigger are also found within the collection. These items include those relating to her modeling career, letters written to her by her husband, Col. Thomas Bigger, during their courtship, and photographs.

The Bigger papers were donated to the Tennessee Historical Society ca. 1989; a subsequent donation of more of the papers was made by Mrs. Bigger to the Tennessee Historical Society. At the time of processing, the papers were in Paige boxes in no particular order; however, the bulk of the genealogical research was found in labeled folders within the boxes.

The materials found within this finding aid measure approximately 15 cubic feet. The original restriction on the materials regarding photocopies was lifted and there are now under no restrictions on the use of the materials. Single photocopies of the papers may be made for scholarly use.

BIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

Jeanne Ridgway Malkin Bigger was born in 1924 in St. Clair County, Illinois, and reared in Fulton, Kentucky. The daughter of Mr. & Mrs. Grover C. Ridgway, Mrs. Bigger graduated from Levy's School of Models, located in St. Louis, Missouri. Mrs. Bigger modeled for Washington University, Blocks Department Store, and L. S. Ayres, as well as the AEDC Women's Club. In 1948, Jeanne Ridgway Malkin married Thomas Bigger, with whom she had three sons.

A graduate of the Institute on Historical and Genealogical Research and Samford University Historical and Genealogical Research Institute and a Certified Genealogical Record Searcher (CGRS), Mrs. Bigger worked as a professional genealogist for over twenty years before her retirement. Mrs. Bigger lectured at the National Archives, the Third International Rose Genealogical Research Conference, the Indiana Historical Society, the Oklahoma Genealogical Society, Fisk University, and Middle Tennessee State University. Mrs. Bigger has served as an instructor of Genealogy I & II at Motlow State Community College for several years. Over the course of her career, Mrs. Bigger served on the following boards and committees: the Memphis State University Press, the Southern Genealogical Exchange, and the Tennessee Historical Records Advisory Board. She joined societies, such as the Tennessee Historical Society, the Franklin County Historical Society, the Coffee County Historical Society, the National Genealogical Society, the Association for Genealogical Education, and the Society of American Archivists, that promote the fields of history and genealogy.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

The Jeanne Ridgway Bigger Genealogical Papers is composed of genealogical research as well as the personal papers of Mrs. Bigger. The bulk of the material falls within the period 1967-1989. The collection is arranged into the following five series: genealogical research, genealogical materials, notebooks, papers relating to the Tennessee Historical Records Advisory Board, and personal papers. The arrangement within the above-mentioned series is largely alphabetical, with series four as an exception.

There was a large collection of copies of “Ansearchin” News originally in the collection. This collection of the publication of the Tennessee Genealogical Society was discarded from the collection as the Tennessee State Library & Archives currently owns a complete set of the volumes of “Ansearchin” News.

Series 1: Genealogical Research

This series is the result of Mrs. Bigger’s research for genealogical clients in her career as a professional genealogist that spanned more than twenty years. The series is nearly half the collection and includes more than 250 genealogical tracings of families from southern middle Tennessee.

Series 2: Genealogical Materials

This series holds a variety of genealogical materials. There are several folders of genealogical queries received by Mrs. Bigger during the course of her career. Genealogical researchers may wish to look at the queries for they represent a useful source of genealogical information. The queries have been arranged alphabetically by the family name on which research is requested. Also found within this series are bibliographies of genealogical resources found in other states, biographies of nineteenth century Methodist ministers, and information regarding divorces in Franklin County, Tennessee. There are a number of histories in the series, such as the history of Jack Daniel’s Distillery; Roane County, Tennessee; and Alto, Tennessee, to name a few. Several genealogical and historical publications, such as the Tennessee Historical Quarterly and Kentucky Ancestors, may also be found in the series. Finally, there are notes from various genealogical conferences and lectures attended by Mrs. Bigger over the course of her career.

Series 3: Notebooks

The third series of the collection is comprised of the notebooks of Mrs. Bigger. The notebooks cover several different topics. Some of the notebooks contain research done by Mrs. Bigger for various clients. Others contain notes for lectures and presentations given by Mrs. Bigger as well as notes from genealogical lectures attended by Mrs. Bigger. There is also a notebook with information on Project Preservation, a volunteer project to conserve and organize loose county records in Franklin County, Tennessee that was chaired by Mrs. Bigger.

Series 4: Tennessee Historical Records Advisory Board Papers

Papers relating to the Tennessee Historical Records Advisory Board comprise the fourth series of the collection. Governor McWherter appointed Mrs. Bigger to the Board in 1988, and she served on the board for one year. Included in this series is correspondence among the members regarding meetings and other issues faced by the board. In addition to the correspondence, several grant proposals received by the board are located within the series. The proposals were requests for funds to preserve various types of historical records. The proposals came from places such as Historic Rugby and Knox County government, as well as several other organizations. The proposals were rated by the board and recommended (or not) for funding.

Series 5: Personal Papers

In this series, the personal and business correspondence of Mrs. Bigger may be found, as well as correspondence relating to the Daughters of the American Revolution, of which Mrs. Bigger was a member. A large number of photographs were found within the collection, and photocopies of the originals may be found in the series (the originals were removed from the documents and placed in the vault in accordance with archival procedure). There are several pictures of Mrs. Bigger from her modeling career as well as pictures of her family. There are also photocopies of newspaper clippings relating to Mrs. Bigger's involvement in genealogy, modeling, and the AEDC Women's Club (the originals were discarded, being highly acidic, in accordance with archival policy). Of particular interest is an old family Bible found within the collection. The Bible belonged to the Ridgway family and dates to the nineteenth century. Family information regarding births, deaths, and marriages of various Ridgways is found in the Bible, which may only be viewed on microfilm due to the fragile condition of the Bible.

The Jeanne Ridgway Bigger Genealogical Papers are an invaluable addition to the Tennessee Historical Society. There is much genealogical research that will aid those interested in genealogical research. Besides being a source of genealogical research, the collection also offers insight into the activities of a professional genealogist.
