INTRODUCTION

The Harris-Wilson Family Photographs and Scrapbooks is a collection that spans the years 1846-1938, with the bulk of materials from ca. 1880-1900. Unfortunately little is known about the provenance of this collection. The source of the materials is unknown as well as the date that it was received by the Tennessee State Library & Archives.

This collection contains two Wilson family scrapbooks, two Harris family scrapbooks, five photograph albums, and 497 photographs that were not included in scrapbooks or albums. The collection measures approximately six linear feet. The loose photographs are grouped into three sizes to facilitate storage.

Even though many of the photographs are not identified and very little is known of the provenance, the quality of the items exemplifies the life style of families of prominence during the period of the 1890's.

The Harris-Wilson Family Photographs and Scrapbooks are located at: II-L-5 & 6. There are no restrictions on the use of materials in this collection.

SCOPE AND CONTENT

The Harris-Wilson Family Photographs and Scrapbooks, spanning the years 1846-1938, is a collection that focuses mostly on the years 1880-1900. The provenance of the collection is unknown other than that it was found during an inventory of the library and archives holdings conducted during 1992. The donor and the date received is unknown. It is possible that the collection is closely connected to Mary Lu Harris. She is identified in several photographs and her image or name consistently appears in the various albums and scrapbooks. The connection between the Harris and Wilson families is unknown but due to the amount of identified material in the collection, those two names were chosen for the title.

Scrapbook number one is inscribed on the inside cover “Wm. O. Harris. From his Mother. July 3d 1877.” This scrapbook contains colorful cutouts from advertisements and greeting cards of the day. This book seems to have been prepared as a gift for her son as a remembrance of the Tennessee Centennial year of 1876.

Scrapbook number two, dated 1846, belonging to Eliza Pitts Black Wilson contains newspaper clippings on many subjects including: poetry, sayings, advice, etiquette, fashion, home remedies, household hints, and recipes of the period.

Scrapbook number three, also belonging to Eliza Pitts Black Wilson is undated. Included on the first page is a cut out autograph of Millard Fillmore that is dated 1884. This scrapbook is similar to scrapbook number two in that it contains newspaper clippings on many helpful and inspiring topics. An obituary of Mr. Dempsey Weaver (b.1815 and died at age 65) is included and evidently was an important individual in the life of the creator of the scrapbook. The obituary describes Mr. Weaver as “one of the original incorporators of the Third National Bank, and President of Equitable Insurance Company of Nashville.” Another interesting feature in this scrapbook is the small, carefully arranged, pressed flower bouquets.

Scrapbook number four is similar to scrapbook number one in that it contains colorful cutouts. The inscription on the first page reads “A W Harris Jr. from Aunt Lucy.”

Photograph album number one contains 53 photographs posed in formal studio settings. Approximately half the photographs are identified. The well dressed individuals present an interesting study of the clothing styles of the period.

Photograph album number two contains 79 photographs similar to the formal poses in album number one. Of particular interest, included as a loose item in this album, is a season ticket to the Tennessee Centennial Celebration of 1897. This ticket is identifiable since it includes the signature and photograph of the owner, Mary Lu Harris.

Photograph album number three seems to be a collector’s album pertaining to the Civil War. It includes 24 Carte de Viste’s of Civil War Generals, etc.

Photograph album number four contains 68 photographs that include mostly scenic and group pictures. Scenes include pictures taken in Florida, possibly taken on vacations or during visits to relatives. Included are several identified pictures of Mary Lu Harris.

Photograph album number five contains 128 photographs that include mostly scenic and animal pictures. Pictures of particular interest might include five scenes of the Tennessee Centennial Celebration, river scenes including the steamer R. Dunbar. One example shows hogs being loaded on the steamboat, which was a very common practice, while another shows a crew member astride the stage boom possibly attending to repairs while the boat is under way. Another river scene of interest includes a picture of a raft of logs maneuvering down stream with the current. Mary Lu Harris, again, is one of the few identified individuals in this album.

The loose photographs are grouped into three size groups: 8x10, 5x7 and oversized. Since the majority of the loose photographs are unidentified, the name and location of the photograph studio is included in the finding aid as a possible clue to identifying the photo. Two Vanderbilt University photographs do include identification of the individuals and may be of interest. Box 7-#14 depicts a gymnastics class of 1888-89 with identification of students on the reverse and Box 10-#1 depicts a group of students in front of Kirkland Hall with partial identification of individuals.

An index to identified photographs has been included as part of this finding aid. The strength of this collection lies in the quality of the albums and scrapbooks. The families depicted were evidently affluent judging from the quality of clothing in the formal photographs and the type of family activities depicted, i.e. travels to Florida, summer resort life at East Brook, and outdoor gatherings in front of large well maintained homes. These photographs and scrapbooks give insight into the lifestyles and social activity of the period from 1880-1900. The weakness of this collection lies in fact that many of the photographs are unidentified and the provenance is unknown. One individual in the collection, Mary Lu Harris, seems to have particular importance to the collection since she appears in nearly every scrapbook and album.

Helpful publications include Nashville in the 1890's by William Waller. This book makes mention of several individuals identified in this collection. Another publication, RECORDED IN NASHVILLE A visual record by the city's early photographers, lists the Nashville photographers from 1855-1935. A copy of the photographers is included in this finding aid.

Family trees have been partially reconstructed for the following families and are included in this finding aid: Eliza Pitts Black, William Owen Harris, Dempsey Weaver, William Wilson, and Andrew Crockett.
