INTRODUCTION

The Mayme Hart Johnson Papers are centered around the research notes of Mayme Hart Johnson, teacher, home demonstration agent and local historian. The collection is composed of church bulletins, printed materials, such as pamphlets and brochures, as well as research notes. Johnson used the research notes primarily in the writing of her history of Tennessee churches, entitled A Treasury of Tennessee Churches, published in 1986.

The collection was the gift of Mayme Hart Johnson of Nashville, Tennessee. Single copies of unpublished materials in the collection may be reproduced for scholarly research.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

The Mayme Hart Johnson Papers, containing one cubic foot of material, span the period 1952 through 1986. It is composed of printed materials, research notes and several miscellaneous items pertaining to the history of Tennessee churches. The collection was received in no particular order, and a new arrangement was created.

The majority of this small collection is composed of research notes used by Johnson in the compilation of her work. These notes are arranged in alphabetical order based on the name of the individual church, i.e. Grace Episcopal Church, St. Mary's Catholic Church etc.

Johnson's raison d'être, Treasury of Tennessee Churches, written during the halcyon days of "Homecoming '86" is an important contribution to the history of religion in Tennessee. Along with the former work, the Mayme Hart Johnson Papers, may prove to be of some value to the scholar interested in the study of Tennessee culture and society.
