Marr and Holman Architectural Firm Records, 1910-1965

COLLECTION SUMMARY

Creator:

Holman, Joseph W., 1891-1952
Marr and Holman (Firm)
Marr, Thomas Scott, 1866-1936

Inclusive Dates:

1910-1965, bulk 1911-1936

Scope & Content:

Consists of approximately 36.6 cubic feet of documents, photographs, and blueprints related to the various building projects carried out by the Nashville architectural firm of Marr and Holman. The collection contains five series, with Series II representing the bulk of the material (see the "Organization/Arrangement of Materials" section for more information about the individual series).

Among the documents are bills, reports, contracts, accounts, bids, estimate, project specifications, estimates, booklets, sketches, blueprints, newspaper clippings, building material samples, and incoming and outgoing correspondence. While the majority of the outgoing correspondence originated with Joseph W. Holman between 1911 and 1929, the greatest concentration of correspondence is between the firm and the contractors and companies responsible for construction. This correspondence dates from 1920 through 1924, but 1922 was the peak year.

Documents related to specific building projects exist in more than one series. For example, material related to the construction of a science building at Middle Tennessee State Teachers College [Middle Tennessee State University] is available in Series IV and Series V. Other notable building projects represented in the collection are various buildings for Tennessee Agricultural and Industrial College [Tennessee State University], the Harry Nichol Building in Nashville, the Nashville branch of the Federal Reserve, various buildings for the Tennessee

Home and Training School for Feeble Minded Persons [Clover Bottom], buildings for the Tennessee School for the Deaf, various movie theaters for the Crescent Amusement Company (which Marr and Holman owned stock in), grocery stores and a warehouse for H. G. Hill Company, apartment buildings on West End in Nashville (which Marr and Holman were mortgagers of), buildings for the Union Ice Cream Company, and the United States Post Office in Nashville.

In December 2019, archives staff discovered additional blueprints lying on top of several map cabinets and buried under a stack of various other oversized materials. The vast majority of these blueprints were of the U.S. Post Office in Nashville, but there were also blueprints for other projects (an addition to the Tennessee State Penitentiary, a women's building at the prison, Cheatham County Jail, East Nashville High School, etc.). Blueprints joined existing folders in the map drawers where appropriate. However, many of the blueprints of the post office were oversized, varying in width from approximately 2.5 to 3.5 feet and varying in length from approximately 4 to 11 feet.

Administrative/Biographical History

"God closed my ears to the petty noises of the world that I might better envision beautiful buildings."

Thomas S. Marr

Thomas Scott Marr Jr. was born in Nashville, Tennessee, on October 20, 1866, to Thomas Scott Marr Sr. (1830-1897), a prominent Nashville banker and broker, and Delia Tarbox Marr (1835-1907). At age three, a bout of scarlet fever caused him to go deaf. He attended public schools before going to the Tennessee School for the Deaf in Knoxville in 1877. After graduating in 1884, he matriculated at Gallaudet College (now Gallaudet University), the world's only college for the deaf, in Washington, D.C. He graduated with a Bachelor of Science degree in 1889.

Marr had become interested in the construction of buildings in Nashville at an early age, so after his graduation he returned to Nashville and began work as a draftsman in the office of Nashville architect George W. Thompson. Because Marr only earned $2.50 per week as a draftsman, he realized that he needed more architectural training. He therefore attended Boston's Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1891 to pursue special course work in architecture. He returned to Nashville the next year and began work at the architectural firm of Thompson and Gibel as a practicing architect, for which he was paid $12 per week.

In 1897, with capital of $500, he opened his own architectural business in the old Chamber of Commerce building (also known as the Exchange Building) on 4th Avenue North. He focused on designing residential buildings. At first, business was limited, but it grew as Marr's reputation spread. Articles frequently appeared in Nashville newspapers about the homes he was building in and around the city. He also occasionally wrote articles about architecture and design for the Nashville American newspaper.

During the summer of 1904, Marr hired Joseph W. Holman, then thirteen years old, as an office boy for $3.50 per week ;his responsibilities included running errands and cleaning the office. He later became Marr's most valuable assistant and in 1910 they formed a partnership, known as Marr and Holman, Architects. Holman was responsible for securing new business and dealing with clients, while Marr supervised the drafting of the architectural designs.

With the addition of Holman and because of the increasing success of the business, the main focus of the firm shifted from residential to industrial and commercial design (although they continued to do residential design). Their architectural designs included the use of reinforced concrete, structural steel, and prefabricated materials. At the height of their business, from the 1920s through the mid-1930s, Marr and Holman designed numerous buildings, including public schools, hotels, courthouses, hospitals, apartment complexes, college buildings, baseball stadiums, theatres, warehouses, garages, and business offices. Two of their major accomplishments were the United States Post Office (completed in 1934) and the Tennessee Supreme Court Building (completed in 1937) in Nashville. Marr also personally designed several buildings for his alma mater, the Tennessee School for the Deaf.

As business grew during the 1920s, the firm hired additional draftsmen, engineers, and stenographers. One of the engineers, James L. Howard, joined the firm in 1928 as a structural engineer. His first assignment was as residential engineer on the construction of the Russell Erskine Hotel in Huntsville, Alabama.

Marr hired another engineer, Richard S. Reynolds, in 1923. Reynolds was a civil engineer and a graduate of Vanderbilt University. Much of the firm's success depended on his ability to master all phases of engineering as it related to the firm.

Marr died suddenly from a stroke on March 2, 1936. After Marr's death, Holman continued to control the firm until his death in 1952. The firm was then reorganized and Reynolds ran it until his retirement in 1970.

Organization/Arrangement of Materials

The collection is divided into five series. Series I contains office files and general correspondence from 1911 through 1923. Series II holds documents related to many of the firm's various building projects from 1920 to 1927. Series III contains contracts and specifications for various building projects from 1920 to 1927. Series IV houses over 500 photographs of various building projects from 1921 through 1929. While there are blueprints scattered throughout Series I-III, most of the blueprints in the collection may be found in Series V, which contains over 700 blueprints of various building projects from approximately 1910 to 1965.

Series I-IV were processed in 1985 and were not reprocessed with the addition of Series V in 2016. However, some of the container list descriptions in Series I-IV were changed in order for the entries to be more accurate and consistent. But while some container list entries may have changed, the folders themselves were not reordered. Thus, the container list entries for Series I-IV do not appear in entirely alphabetical order any more. For example, one item was alphabetized under "P" for "Publishing House, Methodist" in Series III but was alphabetized "M" for "Methodist Publishing House" in Series IV. Both entries are now listed as "Methodist Publishing House." Similarly, Tennessee Agricultural and Industrial College (now Tennessee State University) was listed three different ways: "A & I," "Agricultural, Industrial & Normal School for Colored," and "A & I Normal School." All of the entries were changed to "Tennessee Agricultural and Industrial College." Other references to "colored" among the names of the various building projects were left as is because that is what was used in the original documents. Likewise, "theatre" is used instead of "theater" because that was how it was spelled in all of the documents.

SERIES V. – BLUEPRINTS

Series Scope and Content: Series V is composed of blueprints housed in seven map drawers and the material dates from circa 1910-1965. The blueprints are of many of the building projects listed in Series II. There are also a few documents (bid proposals, project specifications, etc.) among the blueprints for several of the projects.

Series Arrangement: The blueprints are arranged in individual folders by building project. NOTE: The "No. of Items" column in the container list refers to blueprints unless otherwise noted.
