INTRODUCTION

Eudora Williams Graham, Malcolm R. Williams, Jr., Marion Williams Kelley, and Albert Smith, Jr., grandchildren of Rutledge and Graeme McGregor Smith, donated these papers to the Tennessee State Library and Archives.

The materials in the collection measure approximately 6 cubic feet. There are no restrictions, and patrons may make copies for individual or scholarly use.

This finding aid focuses on the papers of Rutledge Smith, railroad official, aviation pioneer, newspaper publisher, and government official, and his wife, Graeme McGregor Smith, educator, genealogist, historian, journalist, author, and an officer in various patriotic and literary organizations, both of Putnam and Davidson Counties, Tennessee.

Spanning the years 1840-1962, the papers contain many materials on such patriotic organizations as the American Legion Auxiliary, Daughters of the American Revolution, Tennessee Society of Daughters of 1812, and the United Daughters of the Confederacy. In addition to these organizations, there is an abundance of documents relating to the League of Southern Writers, Tennessee Federation of Women's Clubs, and the Tennessee Woman's Press and Author's Club. Other items in the collection include clippings, correspondence, estate papers, legal documents, programs, publications, speeches and addresses, and writings.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

The Rutledge and Graeme Smith Papers, containing approximately 500 items, span the period 1840-1962, although the collection focuses on the years 1917-1948. The collection is composed of account books, associations, institutions, etc., cards, Civil War materials, clippings, correspondence, estate papers, genealogical data, legal documents, photographs, a portrait of Rachel Jackson, programs, publications, school records, speeches/addresses, World War I materials, Wright Brothers materials, writings, and several miscellaneous items.

A large portion of the collection consists of copies of personal correspondence of Graeme McGregor Smith with family members. Besides Mrs. Smith's family correspondence, there are letters of various prominent correspondents including William Jennings Bryan (Box 3, Folder 2), Cordell Hull (Box 3, Folder 5), Woodrow Wilson (Box 5, Folder 12), and Alvin York (Box 5, Folder 13). In addition, there is an interesting letter from Eudora Anderson McGregor (the mother of Graeme Smith) to Gen. L. H. Rousseau, written in 1864, refuting a charge that she had given aid and comfort to the Confederate military (Box 1, Folder 19). Finally, there are a series of letters written by Albert Smith to his parents describing his experiences while serving with the American Expeditionary Force (A.E.F.) in France during World War I (Box 3, Folder 9).

There are estate papers relating to the death of Graeme Smith's cousin, Sallie Tilgham, who died intestate in 1934. These papers include information on Mrs. Smith's wide search, as executrix, to trace down legitimate heirs to her cousin's estate.

This collection holds a sizable portion of speeches and addresses made by Mrs. Smith, who had been a member and officer of several patriotic and literary organizations. Due to her speaking ability, she received many invitations to share her thoughts on patriotism, citizenship, and the role of women in society, particularly in the suffrage movement. Graeme became the first registered female voter in Davidson County, despite her husband's oppositions.

Included are papers relating to the activities of Graeme's husband, Rutledge Smith. Smith had an extensive career in railroads and climbed the ranks at Tennessee Central Railroad becoming the superintendent and executive general agent in 1914. He retired in 1947. In Box 10, Folder 3, there is an informative article about his leadership role.

Smith had an avid interest in aviation and was a friend and consultant to the Wright brothers. He had been instrumental in bringing their plane, the "Kitty Hawk," back from Great Britain to the United States in 1948 (see Box 11, Folder 6, for Correspondence and Clippings).

The collection contains several photographs including a portrait of Rachel Donelson Jackson which Mrs. Smith successfully placed in the White House. Another photo is of Rutledge Smith and Woodrow Wilson York, son of Alvin C. York. The photographs reside in the historic vault.
