INTRODUCTION

This collection is centered on Alfred Royal Wynne (1800-1893), merchant, resort operator, slave trader, thoroughbred horse breeder, land speculator, and member of the Tennessee General Assembly from Castalian Springs, Sumner County, Tennessee. The papers were given to the Tennessee Historical Society by G. William Wynne, Springfield, Massachusetts, through the agency of Walter T. Durham, Gallatin, Tennessee.

The materials in this collection measure 10.08 linear feet. There are no restrictions on the materials.

Single photocopies of unpublished writings in the George Winchester Wynne Papers may be made for purposes of scholarly research.

SCOPE AND CONTENT

The Wynne Family Papers contain approximately five thousand items and sixteen volumes spanning the years 1801 to 1972. The materials are concentrated in the years 1840 to 1890 and consist of accounts, account books, correspondence, court records, legislative records, lists, maps, memoirs, military records, obituaries, pamphlets, pictures, poems, programs, promissory notes, recipes, reports, school records, sketches, songs, speeches, title bonds, wills, and a few miscellaneous items.

The collection is centered on Alfred Royal Wynne (1800-1893), merchant, resort operator, slave trader, thoroughbred horse breeder, and land speculator of Castalian Springs, Sumner County, Tennessee. Papers for the twentieth century are those of the collector, George Winchester Wynne (1887-1973), grandson of A.R. Wynne.

Accounts for 1801-1894 are primarily those of A.R. Wynne and concern for the most part his land speculation and slave trading ventures in Tennessee, Louisiana, Missouri, and Texas. Slave trading information may be found in the accounts of Wynne and Prince (William Prince), 1840-1843, and Wynne and Vinson (Stokley Vinson), 1836-1848. For about 25 years these partners together with Benjamin Simpson were engaged in the domestic slave trade.

Account books include those for several mercantile firms located at the early Cumberland River port at Cairo in Sumner County, Tennessee. Among those are S.R. Roberts and Company (1816-1824); Winchester and Cage (1810-1813), where A.R. Wynne entered the mercantile world as a clerk in 1816; George Roberts and Company (1809-1812); and Roberts and Staley (1817-1818).

Correspondence for the years 1802-1972 is primarily the incoming correspondence of A.R. Wynne. Topics include the domestic slave trade; land speculation (particularly in Obion County, Tennessee, and Texas); horse breeding; politics and government; the Mexican War; the Civil War and Reconstruction; railroads (primarily the Mobile and Ohio Railroad); temperance; and the Texas Revolution. Prominent correspondents include Thomas R. Barry, William B. Bate, Campbell Brown, John L. Brown, William B. Campbell, Robert L. Caruthers, Joseph Desha, Daniel S. Donelson, F.C. Dunnington, William R. Elliston, Andrew Ewing, A.E. Garrett, Edward I. Golladay, and Jefferson D. Goodpasture, Josephus C. Guild, John Hallum, William G. Harding, John W. Head, George A. Howard, William H. Jackson, Cave Johnson, Ira P. Jones, John M. Lea, Benton McMillin, William L. Martin, William S. Munday, Balie Peyton, James K. Polk, and John Shelby.

Included in the family correspondence are forty-one letters by A.R. Wynne, dated 1823-1879, which deal for the most part with his business ventures in slave trading, horse breeding and land speculation. Twelve letters by Almira Winchester Wynne (1805-1883), wife of A.R. Wynne, dated 1831-1882, deal almost exclusively with family affairs and activities at the Castalian Springs. The Wynne's eldest son, James Winchester Wynne (1825-1869), who was called "Bolivar", had gone to Wellington, Missouri, and was teaching school there in 1843. Thirty-eight of his letters (1841-1868) are included and deal with his teaching experiences and his military service during the Mexican War. Bolivar was a member of Captain William Blackmore's famous Tenth Legion, a volunteer company from Sumner County. After the war he settled in Washington County, Texas, where he practiced law. It was here that he died on September 26, 1868. Robert Bruce Wynne (1825-1860), like his brother "Bolivar," served in Captain Blackmore's Tenth Legion during the Mexican War. Eight of Bruce Wynne's forty-five letters (1839-1860) concern his Mexican War experience. He later settled at Mayfield, Kentucky, where he was living at the time of his death, July 31, 1860.

Civil War letters are included in the correspondence of Valerius Publicola Wynne (1838-1872), Andrew Jackson Wynne (1839-1905), William Hall Wynne (1843-1862) and Joseph Guild "Punch" Wynne (1845-1887). Val Wynne was practicing law in Memphis when he joined a volunteer company, the Shelby Rifles, in April 1861. His sixty-four letters (1855-1872) provide information concerning campaigns in and around Columbus, Kentucky, and New Madrid, Missouri. After the war Val lived in Columbus, Georgia, for a time and was back in Memphis practicing law at the time of his death, February 19, 1872. Andrew Jackson Wynne and younger brother Joseph Guild Wynne together with Dr. T.J. Kennedy (ca. 1827-1875), resident physician at the Castalian Springs Inn, were members of Colonel William B. Bates's Sumner Grays, which became Company K, Second Tennessee Infantry Regiment, which was engaged in the Virginia campaigns of 1861-1862. Andrew Jackson Wynne's twenty letters (1855-1893) concern Civil War experiences in Virginia and his later life in Dayton, Alabama, where he farmed and served as town mayor (1875). He died in Dayton, January 27, 1905.

In seven letters, Dr. T.J. Kennedy, regimental surgeon for the Second Tennessee Infantry Regiment (May-November 1861), provides the most complete report on the regiment during the first year of the war.

Hall Wynne, who had gone to Texas before the war, was a private in the Seventh Texas Volunteer Infantry. Two letters by him dated 1862 concern camp activities near Hopkinsville, Kentucky. After the fall of Fort Donelson the regiment withdrew to Chattanooga, where Hall Wynne died on June 12, 1862.

George Washington Winchester (1843-1881), brother of Almira Wynne, entered the Confederate service from Cragfont in early 1862. He served as major and quartermaster for the First Brigade, First Division, and Tennessee Infantry. Captured at the Battle of Murfreesboro (December 31, 1862 - January 2, 1863), he spent the remainder of the war at Johnson's Island near Sandusky, Ohio. Four of his fifty-three letters (1829-1878) are from this federal detention camp in 1864-1865.

Court records are primarily those of the chancery and county courts in Sumner County, Tennessee (1823-1960), but also include those for the chancery court in Memphis, Tennessee (ca.1855); the chancery court for the southern district of Mississippi (1847-1849); the chancery court for the Middle Division of Tennessee (1842); the U.S. District Court for Louisiana (ca. 1841 - 1845); and the U.S. District Court for Middle Tennessee (1868). These documents, including bills of complaint, a bill of revivor, certificates of appointment, citations, decrees, depositions, exceptions to reports, executions, guardianship securities, lists of cases, a membership roster, memoranda, notice of bond, petitions, summonses, and a warrant in bankruptcy, concern claims both for and against A.R. Wynne and his various partners in such enterprises as land speculation and the slave trade. Some litigation concerns the family property at Castalian Springs.

Estate papers include an inventory for the estate of Henry Belote dated September 15, 1833. Others are for Isaac Bledsoe (inventory of slaves, 1837); C. Spier, 1846; General James Winchester, 1826; Lucilius Winchester, 1834; and Susan W. Wynne, 1924. Also included is an undated memorandum for the N. Prince estate; a notice to the debtors of the J.W. Knight estate, 1839.

Genealogical data for the family of John Lee Swaney (1781-1876) of Virginia and Sumner County, Tennessee, together with that for the William Winchester (1710-1790) family of England; Virginia; and Sumner County, Tennessee; and for the Thomas Wynne family of North Carolina; Texas; Amelia County, Virginia; and Sumner and Wilson Counties, Tennessee, is included.

Land records include deeds for property in Sumner and Obion Counties, Tennessee, 1828-1889, and in San Augustine County, Texas, 1854. Surveys for Sumner County, Tennessee, are undated and for 1831-1873.

Military records include maps and images of the War of 1812 campaign of General James Winchester and the Northwest Army defeated by a British-Indian force at the Battle of Frenchtown on the River Raisin, January 22, 1813. Muster rolls are for Captain Harry's Company of Lincolnton, North Carolina, Volunteers enlisted October 31, 1831, and for Captain Squire Haggard's Company, March 19, 1837. Also included are "Regulations Relative to the Admission of Cadets into the Military Academy" issued by J.R. Poinsett, Secretary of War, January 21, 1840.
