SCOPE AND CONTENT

The papers of the Civil War Centennial Commission document the procedure Tennesseans utilized to observe properly the centennial anniversary of the American Civil War. Tennessee supplied more soldiers than any other southern state to the Federal and Confederate Armies and was the scene of 774 battles, which exceeds all states except Virginia.

Created by an act of the General Assembly in 1959, (Chapter 203, Senate Bill 383, by Dement) the Commission was composed of by the Governor and House Speaker as ex-officio members, Chairman Stanley F. Horn, Executive Director Campbell H. Brown, three residents of each Grand Division, and an Advisory Council.

Activities of the Commission included the erection of historical markers and the establishment of an educational publications program. Other functions were to focus public attention on neglected cemeteries, to collect and restore Confederate flags, and to initiate the formation of county and municipal committees. These local committees, which the Commission assisted in an advisory capacity, planned and financed 37 commemorative activities.

The bulk of records is correspondence dated mainly from 1961 to 1965. Most of the correspondence pertains to Stanley F. Horn and Campbell H. Brown. The correspondence is arranged by author or subject in chronological order. Of particular interest is the relationship between the National Civil War Centennial Commission and government officials in Tennessee prior to the establishment of the Commission. Other types of records include bulletins, minutes, news releases, and published material relating to the Civil War.

Subject and name indices have been compiled for the research. Individuals who made substantial contributions to the Commission and the chairmen of the county committees are listed.
