COLLECTION SUMMARY

Creator:

Tennessee. State Game and Fish Commission

Inclusive Dates:

1925-1975

Scope & Content:

Consists of the State Game Warden correspondence and other materials relative to the Tennessee Game and Fish Commission. The collection, 1925-1970, contains 28 boxes and one bound copy of the minutes of the Tennessee Farmers Association, 1907-1910 (now, Tennessee Farm Bureau Federation).

The collection spans four broad sections: (1) General public correspondence (1925-1930), which makes up the majority of the collection; (2) Deputy Game Warden applications, which provide vital statistics about each Deputy Game Warden in Tennessee; (3) Interoffice correspondence (1927-1930); and (4) the Model Cities Program booklets (1970, 1975).

The collection provides the researcher with details of the operation of a small Tennessee state government department in the late 1920s, along with the developing concern over the pollution of Tennessee's rivers and streams and the restocking of game for future generations.

Administrative/Biographical History

In 1889, the State Legislature created the first State Game Wardens and in 1893 created the office of "County Commissioner of Fish" for each county. The "game and fish commission" has transferred via legislation to many state departments over the years. In 1903, the Legislature created the Department of Fish and Game. In 1905, its duties expanded to include the state forestry division. In 1923, in another reorganization, the Department of Fish and Game lost its independence with its incorporation into the Tennessee Department of Agriculture. In 1923, the division once again became an independent executive agency as the "Department of Fish and Game." In 1935, another confusing reorganization led to the Department's demotion to the "Board of Conservation for Fish, Game and Wildlife." In 1937, during the administration of Governor Gordon Browning, this division transferred to the new "Tennessee Department of Conservation." During the Browning Administration of 1949-1953, the Game and Fish Commission emerged as an independent agency. In 1975, by an Act of the General Assembly, this commission's duties expanded, and its formal name changed to the Tennessee Wildlife Resources Agency.
