SCOPE AND CONTENT

The Gold Star was awarded to those World War I soldiers who lost their lives in combat or by disease.

In the 1920's, during the administration of Mr. John Trotwood Moore, the State Librarian and Archivist, questionnaires were sent to all known "Gold Star Boys" families asking for service information, photographs, postcards, correspondence received from the soldier to his family and friends, or from acquaintances such as ministers or politicians, telegrams notifying the family of his illness, wounds or death, and his grave site. Newspaper clippings from local papers memorializing the soldiers as well as telling the battles in which he participated are also included. In addition some of the soldiers kept diaries telling their day-by-day activities in action and while on furlough. These diaries or logs describe battles, tell of comrades, and in general document the actions of the individual soldiers during World War I.

Due to the publicity in the newspapers and the individual county committees set up to identify and locate the families of "Gold Star Boys," there was a great response to these questionnaires.
